SanLamere (UK) Ltd. scored gold in 2008 with the launch of its incredible water-saving Profile 5 integrated toilet suite and hand-basin and have started 2009 with yet more accolades for their world-first.

SanLamere, who are exclusive European distributors of the Australian made Caroma combined toilet suite and hand-basin, were this week awarded the coveted Waterwise Marque for the Profile 5 which saves up to 70% of total bathroom water usage.

SanLamere Group's CEO JP Davies-Morgante explains that by combining 100% grey water recycling from the combined sink, world-leading technology in water delivery and outstanding reliability in its dual flush mechanism, the Profile5 signals a revolution in water-saving measures being incorporated into stylish and functional bathroom furniture. Speaking at this year's Ecobuild exhibition held at London's Earl Court in March, JP confirmed to an enthusiastic and enraptured audience, that "space-saving design and water-saving technology have been cleverly combined to deliver true functionality across domestic and commercial applications; evidenced by a boom in sales throughout Europe and the recent receipt of endorsements for the Profile5 from governments, bathroom retailers, designers and installers".

So it seems that SanLamere really does continue to lead the way with its singular dedication to global innovation!
